

MEMORANDUM FOR: [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] called, left the following message. [REDACTED]

The marble you were interested in is quarried at the Georgia Marble Company, Rutledge, Vermont. We will need clear vein with one grade (you might check the grade statement). A 3x3x3 piece of marble will weigh one ton and will cost about $2500 plus freight. We have no marble left from the building.

[REDACTED] returned your call. He said that if you are calling about the sample of marble, the only sample Georgia could supply is a 12x12 piece, 1 inch thick. The marble is similar to that in the lobby and Georgia would like to have it back since it is a piece they send around to prospective clients. It has some veining and clouding in it.

Before you call [REDACTED] gave the sample to [REDACTED] who was in the Ames Bldg to bring back here. [REDACTED] assumes [REDACTED] will be showing it to you.

[REDACTED] Unless you have something else you wanted to talk about,

Hon. Richard Helms
Director of Central Intelligence
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C.

Dear Dick:

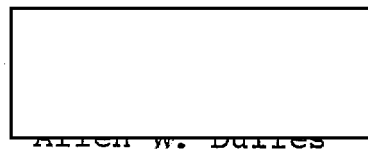

Please excuse the delay in answering your very gracious letter of 6 August. I have been away on a fishing trip at Henderson Harbor, New York, and I am only back in the office for a couple of days and then shall be away until after Labor Day, when I return for good.

I was very touched by the suggestion about the bust, and I will do as you feel is desirable and in the interest of the Agency. Personally, I have always shied away from sculpture as one faces a difficult predicament if, in this difficult field, the final product is not what one really hoped for, as sometimes is the case, and then there is a problem as to whether to use it or not. Hence, I have hesitation about the proposal, but in the final analysis I would be guided by your own good judgment and I would certainly sit for Mr. Heinz Warneke for such amount of time as he feels necessary if you decide to proceed with the project.

In any event, I was very touched by your thought and suggestion..

Sincerely,

STATINTL

Allen W. Dulles
